Journal of Music Therapy, XXIV (4), 1987, 239–240
© 1987 by the National Association for Music Therapy, Inc.

Index to Volume XXIV (1987)

The number in the parentheses indicates the issue in which the article will be found; the final number indicates the page.

Ayres, B. R. The effects of a music stimulus environment versus regular cafeteria environment during therapeutic feeding; 24(1), 14.

Barclay, M. W. A contribution to a theory of music therapy: Additional phenomenological perspectives on GestaltQualitat and transitional phenomena; 24(4), 224.

Bryant, D. R. A cognitive approach to therapy through music; 24(1), 27.

Coates, P. "Is it functional?" A question for music therapists who work with the institutionalized mentally retarded; 24(3), 170.

Codding, P. A. A content analysis of the Journal of Music Therapy, 1977–85; 24(4), 195.

Darrow, A. A. An investigative study: The effect of hearing impairment on musical aptitude; 24(2), 88.

Davis, W. B. Music therapy in 19th century America; 24(2), 76.

Gfeller, K. Music therapy theory and practice as reflected in research literature; 24(4), 178.

Gibson, C. Music therapy in Japan: An 11-year update; 24(1), 47.

Gregory, D., & Sims, W. L. Music preference analysis with computers; 24(4), 203.

Heller, G. N. Ideas, initiatives, and implementations: Music therapy in America, 1789–1848; 24(1), 35.

Krout, R. Evaluating software for music therapy applications; 24(4), 213.

Krout, R. Music therapy with multi-handicapped students: Individualizing treatment within a group setting; 24(1), 1.

Mathenius, L. See Moore, R.

Moore, R., & Mathenius, L. The effects of modeling, reinforcement, and tempo on imitative rhythmic responses of moderately retarded adolescents; 24(3), 160.

Oppenheim, L. Factors related to occupational stress or burnout among music therapists; 24(2), 97.

Prickett, C. A. The effect of self-monitoring on positive comments given by music therapy students' coaching peers; 24(2), 54.

Sims, W. L. See Gregory, D.